REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

To the Members of the Society, the Churches, and All Our Other Friends:

It has been my custom to begin my yearly report with reference to the financial situation of the hospital, not by any means with the thought that it is the important item to be considered, but because without a successful financial administration all the important work of the hospital suffers. No hospital can make money. If it can gradually gain in financial strength there is always the opportunity to enlarge its charity service and to increase necessary equipment, thereby gaining efficiency. Many people have a decidedly hazy idea about hospitals. They do not attempt to understand how they are carried on. They know they exist, and they do not particularly concern themselves how. They seem to consider hospitals quite convenient, sometimes for themselves, sometimes for those who are dependent on them; quite helpful if their necessities require a trained nurse. But as to how these facilities are maintained ready for their use at all times, they give little thought. Fortunately there are others who realize the necessity, and gladly give their help. To both elements of the community it is well to state our financial condition. To the first, in the hope that it may prove educational; to the second, that we may in some manner render an account of our stewardship.

Nothing has been more evident in the past year of stress and strain, and of unlimited demands for money for war purposes, than the loyalty of those liberal givers who so regularly and generously support our charities, and their determination that the latter should not suffer. Their number is much smaller than it should be, in a city as large as ours. A small group of public-spirited men and women are constantly asked for help, and as regularly respond. This number should be enlarged, and there are many who could easily carry part of the burden which is now borne by so few. The loyalty of our friends who have contributed so generously and with the same regularity as in previous years has been a great inspiration to us during the year.

The difficulties which have existed in ever-increasing intensity since 1914 have not lessened. Every item of cost—food, wages, supplies of all sorts—has steadily and in some instances largely increased during the past year. The war and war work, notably munitions, have taken many employes, and replacing them has been difficult and costly. The experience of all the hospitals in the country has been the same. One and all have been hard pressed to do their work, and the financial situation has been universally serious. Fortunately we have been able to “carry on” with but little impairment of our standards, and to complete the year without a deficit. This would have been impossible but for the loyal support of our friends, and to all who have so generously assisted us we tender our warmest appreciation and thanks.

The cost of carrying on the hospital has steadily increased. It amounted to $449,359.30 for the year. This requires a larger working capital than ever before, as our monthly payments are so large. We must have a larger, free, working capital or be in continuous difficulty.

During the year strict compliance was given to the request of the government for conservation of food. The active co-operation of both patients and nurses was marked.

In our last report attention was called to the reduction of our debt during the year from $140,000 to $20,000. It is a great satisfaction to be able to report that this last amount was liquidated early this year, and that there is no indebtedness outstanding of any description. It is well to emphasize the fact that this was accomplished without the use of any bequests, which in all cases were placed in the endowment fund.

An important feature of the year was the influenza epidemic. As soon as it became evident that it was spreading through the city positive action was taken. General visiting was at once stopped. The hospital was quite full of patients at the time, and daily admittances increasing. All cases that could be postponed, such as certain surgical, were encouraged to wait. The contagious ward was put in order and the number of beds increased to the fullest extent. The seventh floor of the Jones building is well adapted to the care of such cases, and arrangements were made to remove the general patients from this floor when required. No new patients were admitted there. By order of the State Board of Health all hospitals were quarantined one week later. Our action previously taken proved an important advantage. Our new class of pupil nurses, numbering sixty-four, had just arrived. Apparently some of them brought the epidemic with them, and very soon it was in evidence. At its height six nurses a day were taken down; in all eighty-three became sick. As soon as the disease manifested itself they were removed from the home to the hospital and cared for. We were exceedingly fortunate, as only one failed to recover. Miss Gladys Foster, a senior pupil of much promise, could not rally. Meanwhile all ordinary cases were taken from the seventh floor and placed in another part of the hospital, and that entire space given up to the epidemic. No surgical cases, except emergencies, were received, and as far as possible we settled down to a fight against the epidemic. As the nurses recovered and began to return to work, the employees were taken down. A total of thirty-three were affected, and this seriously crippled our kitchen and laundry force, and made operation difficult. Fortunately we were able to get through and to do our part in receiving outside influenza cases. Only two cases developed among the entire number of patients who were in the house when the epidemic commenced, and one of these went outside contrary to instructions, and contracted the disease in that way. All the cases that were sent in to us were desperate when received, generally with serious pneumonia, and for a few days the mortality was large. Later we were fortunate in saving practically all that came to us.

All hospitals were quarantined by the Board of Health from October 4 to November 10. Strictly following instructions, only emergency operations were performed during that period, and all general cases were discouraged from coming to us. The effect on our Private Pavilion was most marked, and the patients there were gradually reduced to a small number. This made a serious inroad in our finances, as the Private Pavilion patients are the only ones that pay the full cost of the service. The small profit which is made on those patients goes to repair the loss on the general wards and defray the cost of our charity work. The result showed a loss for October nearly double that of any month since the hospital opened, and November was but slightly better. Our obligation to the staff, to superintendent and nurses, and to all employes who loyally co-operated together under very trying conditions, is great. Without disparagement to any when all have given such devoted service, special mention should be made of those internes and nurses who labored so strenuously during the epidemic without thought of themselves, and contributed so greatly to the successful issue of the struggle. Our employes stood by us splendidly. Acknowledgment of our sincere appreciation is heartily given to all.

There was a recurrence of the disease throughout the city in December. This again compelled turning over a considerable space to influenza patients only. Our previous experience enabled us to manage it with less difficulty, but the effect on our finances was marked, and our regular work was curtailed.

For its effect on the future of the hospital, the most important event of the year was the wonderful bequest of the late Mr. George B. Harris, who died June 10. The bulk of his fortune was bequeathed equally to the hospital and to the Art Institute. The inheritance taxes are large, but it is estimated that the amount to be received by each residuary legatee will amount to over $400,000. Mr. Harris was a distinguished railroad man, serving for many years as president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, and later as chairman of its board. A quiet and somewhat reserved man, not inclined to look for any prominence in the world outside of his work, to which he devoted his energies with great singleness of purpose, he yet was widely known and had a large circle of friends. The disposition of his property in such way as to be of the most benefit to the community in which he had acquired it, was a subject to which he gave much attention during his later life. He acquainted himself fully with the work of the hospital, its hopes and aims, and decided it was worthy of his assistance. Our desire and effort will be to administer his most generous gift in such a way as will best carry out the wishes of the donor in benefiting this community. It will be a splendid memorial to Mr. Harris and will greatly increase our capacity for usefulness. The money will not reach us until October next.

It has been a successful year for our Training School. In accordance with the request of the government that training be furnished to as many as possible, every effort was made to enlarge the capacity of the home. The number was thus increased to 250 pupils, in addition to our staff of 23. This large number, so much greater than was ever expected and much beyond the nursing requirements of the hospital, made the administration of the school quite difficult. Miss McMillan and her able assistants proved entirely equal to the emergency, and by constant and unremitting effort succeeded in conducting the school with its usual efficiency. The epidemic, of course, complicated the situation for a few weeks, but did not seriously interfere with the nursing of the hospital, or materially interrupt the pupils' training. Despite the large number we received, we were obliged to decline many applicants. We have enrollments up to the spring of 1920.

During the year there went out from our number to the war a total of 160; doctors, nurses and employes. Three of these died in the service.

Miss Frances Poole

Miss Mary Thomas

Mr. John Heintz

Unit Number 13, generally known as the Presbyterian Hospital Unit, did noble work in France and won high commendation. Our doctors and nurses served overseas and in camps in this country. Each deserves the warmest appreciation of this community. Their names will long be held in grateful remembrance.

The absence of these members of our staff rendered the work of those who remained behind very arduous. They all measured up loyally to the necessities of the situation, and successfully maintained the service of the hospital. They were anxious to go, and to bear their part in the active service of the war, but recognizing the need of their service here, they cheerfully surrendered their own wishes and remained to perform the duties which, while less prominent in the public eye, were equally necessary.

During the year the following amounts have been received from bequests and gifts, and been added to the Endowment Fund:

Estate of Nelson B. Holden.....	$ 614.47
Gift of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Shaw, for the Edith F. S. Shaw
Memorial Room	10,000.00
Estate Jane B. Prince.....	153.50
Bequest Mary Rose Harris.....	10,000.00
Estate Thomas Murdoch	3,931.66
Estate George B. Harris, on acct.....	10,833.33

The Social Service Department has co-operated with the medical staff in efforts to re-establish the health of patients admitted to the hospital, and in arranging for the admission of such patients as are in especial need of expert care, but who would not be able to pay hospital charges. The department is also interested in the families of patients, instructing or directing them in regard to health and other things that are indicated when friendly visits are made. A cordial spirit of co-operation exists between the department and other social agencies, making it possible to interpret to them the medical work for the benefit of the patient, the family and the community. An especial effort has been made in the past year to carry out the recommendations of the Children's Bureau in teaching parents how to keep children well, beginning with the earliest days of infancy. The department hopes at an early date to do parental work in connection with the Maternity Department of the hospital. There will be many phases of medical social work in the problems that will arise during the period of reconstruction, none of which are yet clear, excepting that we must do our part.

The Out-Maternity service shows a constant growth and is an agency of important benefit to the district in which it ministers.

Occupation Therapy has been put on a permanent basis under the care of an experienced instructor. It bids fair to become an important remedial agency. Owing to the comparatively short stay of our patients in the hospital and the fact that few remain long enough to become thoroughly interested in the development of their work, it remains to be seen whether this service can attain its full benefit with us. But it seems that beyond a doubt this service is bound to be of increasing importance to the treatment of many forms of disease, and especially of convalescent patients. We are glad to lend our assistance to its development.

Our admittances for the year were reduced by the epidemic, previously noted. The number was 9,852. Attention is called to the report of the superintendent for details.

No report would be complete without special mention of our superintendent, Mr. Bacon. To his unremitting labor and his devotion to all its interests much of the successful administration of the hospital is due.

The year to which we look forward is fraught with uncertainty. The close of the war has brought forth new questions of tremendous importance to the world, which must be answered. In their solution our own country will take prominent part. What the effect will be on our finances, who may tell? The hospital is gradually approaching a situation of greater financial strength, which will bring opportunity for increasing usefulness and efficiency. But still we must depend on our friends, and in submitting this report of our administration for the past year, we bespeak their continued assistance for that on which we are entering.

ALBERT M. DAY, President.

THE SIXTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SCHOOL FOR NURSES

Mr. President and Members of the Board of Directors:

The sixteenth year of the Nurses' School being a war year, naturally it has been a memorable one. In common with all other schools of the country, and with all forms of work, each result secured has been through more than normal effort. Service to the sick, manifested by the school first in the actual nursing care given to the patients of the hospital and to its affiliated institutions, has been carried on. That service, also in a way of hardly secondary importance to the sick, has been rendered by the school in its function of preparing the student nurse for graduate nurse work.

In this two-fold duty the school has missed much the customary assistance of valued members of the staff who were called into military service, and has been hampered by frequent change of personnel as instructors, supervisors, special duty nurses responded to Government need, in groups or as individuals, until by November 11, 1918, 101 of our graduates had reported to us as being in service, while another large group was enrolled waiting to be called.

The willing response of our graduates to patriotic duty at the sacrifice of personal affairs is a matter of pride and satisfaction to the school, and marks, in its short history, a record which will inspire its future history makers to equal or excel.

Three of those who gladly went to serve gave their lives. Curry Desha Breckinridge, class 1908, died in the Mary Byrne Memorial Room June 23, 1918, after a lingering illness resulting from overwork in France; Frances Poole, class 1915, died October 9, 1918, at Camp Ontario, New York, of pneumonia following influenza; and Mary Thomas, class 1913, October 25, 1918, at Camp Cody, New Mexico, also of influenza pneumonia.

As the result of nursing civilian patients with influenza, and therefore also surely "in service," Mary Elizabeth Swan, class 1915, died October 14, 1918, and Margaret M. Williams, class 1915, died November 21, 1918, both of pneumonia following influenza.

Combined with a decreased and changing graduate nurse staff, Government demands on the school itself necessitated abrupt readjustments. Its request that senior students should serve in the military hospital under the control and supervision of a selected graduate nurse corps met with a response of seventy-eight volunteers from our student nurses, and at once intensive instruction in practical and theoretical work for these volunteers was planned.

Again at the request of the Government, the student nurse body was much increased, in April forty-eight students entering and in October sixty-three, making a total of one hundred and eleven for the year. In spite of the fact that the influenza, with its subsequent disorganization, arrived at the same time as the fall students, most of the members contracting the disease; that of the group of one hundred and eleven, thirty-two entered as non-residents, living away from the institution, coming daily for practical and theoretical instruction; and in addition that a number of this group entered avowedly for patriotic reasons alone, only seven of the number have dropped from the school. Of the seven, one was called into Government service for expert work almost immediately after entrance and expects to continue nurse training when released; physical condition as the result of influenza is responsible for two; one withdrew when the armistice was signed, and three showed themselves not adapted for a nurse's life.

An increased student body, groups of these students requiring intensive training, logically means increase in instructing and supervising staff, but patriotic and practical causes brought about a considerably reduced graduate nurse staff. The members of the depleted staff, however, willingly took up extra work, and while themselves not privileged to respond to the stimulating appeal of war service, without hesitation added to their own duties those laid down by members who could so respond, and also assumed the additional responsibilities which the Government placed upon civilian nurses' schools.

For this most loyal support of each member of the staff—Miss Russell, Miss Forrest, Miss Alyward and other assistants, instructors, supervisors—and without which the successful maintenance of the school during a difficult year would have been impossible, we are most grateful and wish to express full appreciation and give most hearty thanks.

The gratitude of the school is also due, and is cordially given, to those members of the medical profession who, heavily burdened with their own professional responsibilities, have taken time to deliver lectures to our students and have thus rendered valued assistance to the school in time of great need.

An added anxiety carried by the graduate nurse staff was due to the increasing shortage of nurses for sickness in the homes of the community, this becoming exceedingly serious at the time of the influenza epidemic. While appreciating the impossibility of extending the peace quota of nurses to cover the exigencies of a calamitous epidemic following a four-year world war, during which time over 20,000 of the graduate nurses of the country had been drawn into military service, it in no way lessened the distress in our inability to give aid to those seeking nurses for their sick, and it is with keen anticipation that we look forward to the early release of large groups of nurses from military service.

The reason for unnecessarily large classes being over, these will now be decreased to keep within bounds of the normal teaching ability of the school. The requirement started in 1917 of a registration fee deposit by applicants before enrollment be allowed in any class, has proved satisfactory in so far that it eliminates from the list any but earnest candidates, allowing a basis of intelligent planning for future admissions.

The Qualifying Certificate issued since September, 1918, by the Department of Registration and Education in Illinois, and without presentation of which a student may not enter an accredited school for nurses in this state, further helps in the stabilization of enrollments, and with these two checks students are now being enrolled for future classes with a fair amount of assurance.

To satisfy public sentiment, efforts are now being made by national and state bodies of both professional and lay groups to study and classify the schools for nurses of the country. In such classification attention is given to the methods of practical and theoretical instruction and time devoted to such instruction; to the proportion of graduate nurse staff to the student body; to healthful and guided home conditions for the student; and to the fact of hours of practical work of the student limited to fifty-two weekly. As the liberality and wise foresight of the Board of Directors of this institution since the days of organization of the school have taken into consideration and suitably met each of the above points, it is without anticipation of dread or anxiety that we look forward to close inspection and a just classification, either by self-appointed groups or by that department of the State of Illinois under which, since the passage of the Civil Administrative Code, all accredited schools for nurses are placed.

There has been in the school, including the nurses on duty in the Central Free Dispensary, the District Obstetrical Department, and in the Rush Medical Clinics, an average of:

22 Graduate Nurses

3 Graduate Dietitians

25 Total Graduate Staff

An average of:

169 Matriculated Student Nurses

51 Preliminary Class

220 Total Student Nurse Body, making a grand average total in the school of 245. Of this number an average of:

14 Graduate Nurses

2 Dietitians

128 Student Nurses have been on duty in the hospital.

Student Nurses have accomplished:

1464 days nursing in the Central Free Dispensary

369 days nursing in the Social Service Department

1187 days nursing in the Durand Contagious Hospital

711 days nursing in the District Obstetrical Department, making 3761 calls in the homes of the poor

101 days special duty nursing

693 days in the Occupational Department.

An average of 39 graduate nurses have been employed by patients for special duty in the hospital, accomplishing 14,125 days of special duty, showing a decrease from 16,514 days special duty nursing reported in 1915.

The position of the "North Nurse" was held by Miss Marie Eby from January first to June first and by Miss Mary McKechnie from June first to October first. They accomplished 233 days of nursing and gave care to 185 patients so ill as to require constant care, but themselves unable to pay for that care. The great value of the nurse as maintained by the North fund, to the hospital and to the patient with small means, has been fully demonstrated. Her services were given up temporarily October first in order not to hold back one dispensable graduate nurse from public service. With the large student nurse body this work has been carried satisfactorily, and when normal conditions return the "North Nurse" will be reappointed. It is hoped that other charitable people will consider this method of bringing care and comfort to the poor in time of great physical suffering.

The responsibility of the school in carrying the Occupational Department ended August first when, upon the appointment of Miss Winifred Brainerd, into her expert hands all details were handed.

To aid in the rapid development of public health nursing, the school has eagerly grasped the opportunity of three months' instruction in that branch of nursing for a group of its senior class to be started shortly at the School of Civics and Philanthropy, the course being financed by the Chicago Chapter of the Red Cross.

Forty-five nurses were granted diplomas in 1918, bringing the number of graduates to 344. Of this number 122 are known to have been withdrawn from active nursing, 115 through marriage and 7 by death.

With much regret we report the death on October 15, from pneumonia following influenza, of Gladys Foster, a member of the 1919 graduating class. Miss Foster was one of the 78 who had volunteered for military service, and was eagerly and earnestly preparing herself when taken ill. She was also one of those who, as a student nurse, showed understanding of the word "service" as applied to the life and work of the nurse. The death from scarlet fever of Mary Byrne, in 1908, is the only other loss of a student through death which the school has had since its organization in 1903. The establishment of an endowed room in the hospital for sick nurses was a fit memorial to Mary Byrne, and it is hoped that some equally well-selected memorial may be found for Gladys Foster.

While the daily needs of the school are most generously cared for, there still remain some unfilled requests: A fund to purchase text books,; other nursing literature; laboratory and class room equipment as the need arises; scholarships for some of our graduates to prepare them further for teaching or executive positions, public health work or other forms of public service; and the nucleus of an endowment fund which will in time be of sufficient amount to relieve the hospital funds from carrying the expense of the theoretical teaching work of the school.

It is impossible to close this report without an effort to thank in part a few of the many friends of the schools. Mr. Grey, who, year after year, has faithfully instructed our students and whose assistance is most valuable; Miss Breeze for similar and equally valued aid; the members of the Medical Staff, attendant and resident, for professional assistance, advice and care in time of illness; Mr. Bacon and his staff for much kindly forbearance; the Women's Auxiliary Board, especially Miss Drake and the other members of the nurses' school committee, for their interest and active support; the President and the Board of Directors, whose generous and full understanding of aims and whose continuous upholding have made it possible to secure whatever success may be credited to the school. To these and to all others, too numerous to name, we return most sincere thanks for interest and assistance.

Respectfully submitted,

M. H. McMILLAN, Superintendent of Nurses.

REPORT OF RECORDING SECRETARY

The Woman's Auxiliary Board and the Executive Committee have held meetings each month during the past year with the exception of the customary omissions in July, August and September. Average attendance at general meetings, 73 members. February meeting recorded the maximum attendance, 78 present; and the October meeting the minimum attendance, 65 present. Total enrollment, 244, which includes 21 honorary members.

The percentage of attendance from different churches shows that the Ninth Church duplicated its record of the previous year, its one member having faithfully scored 100 per cent. River Forest having two members ranked second with 94 per cent. The First made a notable record for third place with 72 per cent, followed closely by Normal Park with 71 per cent.

The year 1918 witnessed the consolidation of six churches having members on our Board. The Hinsdale Presbyterian and Congregational united, forming the Union Church. The Sixth Presbyterian was absorbed by the First and the Central Park and Eighth churches united, taking the name of the New Eighth. Our Board therefore consists of 1 Union and 43 Presbyterian churches, besides which there is a general membership of 8 persons.

The new members for the year consist of 18, which have been added to the regular roll and 3 to the honorary list. There have been 14 resignations and the Board has lost by death 5 members.

EDITH NEWELL CHILDS, Secretary.

REPORT OF CORRESPONDING SECRETARY

Fifty-three letters have been received and 68 letters have been written.

Twenty new names have been added to the membership of the Board.

The Bulletin, issued quarterly, has been sent to each member of the Board free of charge up to the second quarter of this past year, when the continued increase in price of publishing forced us to ask 50 cents a year, and it is now sent only to those who have paid for it.

JESSIE A. PENFIELD, Corresponding Secretary.
